The Greatest Tzedaka

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

The greatest Tzedaka you can give someone is to smile at them. To say something good, like 'Good Morning' or 'Good Night', while saying it with a smile can literally lift someone's spirit. People go around so depressed and beat up, and when we show them a smile, and offer a good word, we actually give them life. It doesn't cost any money, it's free and it's the greatest Tzedaka. Mohorosh said that to give someone a smile or a good word is worth a thousand times more than money, because if we give money it gets used in one day, but when we lift up his spirit, we are giving him life.

Bring Something

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

Hashem wants us to build a Mikshan and have it dwell amongst us. Everyone should bring some type of component to partake in the building of the Mishkan. This is an amazing thing. We are going to build the Beis Hamikdash, a house for Hashem, and everyone, every type of person should bring something. Whatever you can bring to the table is important, even if it seems unnecessary, everyone has a place in the Beis Hamikdash. We learn from here, never to put anyone down, and we are not even allowed to put ourselves down as well.

The Free World

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

As long as a person is not happy, he can't control his mind, and he thinks towards negativity. He only thinks and sees bad. But if we're happy, then we have control over our thoughts, as the Rebbe said in (Lekutei Mohoran 2:10), "Simcha is the free world". When a person is happy, it is a sign that he is by holiness, and when he is depressed, he needs to try with all his might to be happy and run away from all the impurity.

Still Missing Something

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

Everyone ponders upon such questions as 'Why didn't I find my Shiduch yet?', or 'Why don't I have any Parnassah?', 'I Daven, I learn, I do Mitzvos, and I'm still missing something, things are not going as I would like!'. The holy Rebbe said in (Lekutei Mohoran 2:52), all these questions that people have on Hashem, this is the way it needs to be, and this is the beauty of Hashem, because if we would of understood everything, then his understanding would be just like our understanding, Chas Veshalom. Therefore, this is the beauty of Hashem, that we don't understand him. The Rebbe ended, "Fortunate are those who don't have any questions on Hashem.

It's Not Worth It

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

A Breslever Chusid was once heard whispering to himself while walking down the street, "I want children who will write Seforim, I want children who will be Ehrlicher Yiden". He was asked, Why are you asking for children who will write Torah while walking in the street?. He replied, "I am speaking to myself, every second I have a big desire to pick up my eyes and look around, but it's very hard for me to guard my eyes, then I remember what the Rebbe said in (Sefer Hamidos Ois Neiuf 2:19), Those who don't look at other women will merit to have children who will write Seforim. Therefore, I am reminding myself that it's worth it not to look in order to merit children who will be Ehrlicher Talmidei Chachamaim.

Tell me Mr. Therapist

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

Unfortunately, it's unfortunate how Yiddishe kids are being taken to therapy where the Torah gets ripped away from them! The first thing a therapist asks, Does your father scream at you? Yeh!, and you're also going to scream at your kids!, and the therapist himself also screams at his own kids! This is the first thing that therapists ask in order to persuade kids to go against their parents. If the Rabonim would know what therapy is all about they would of come out screaming Gevald!, this is outrageous! The first thing that happens when a boy who needs to deal with something that's not going in order with him in school and his teacher doesn't have strength to work with him, even if he's a healthy child, they send him for help, and he is immediately asked if his father screams at him? Really, he screams at you!?! Tell me Mr. Therapist, you don't scream??
