Have Everything Fixed

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

Listen to these words from Reb Nosson. The holy Reb Nosson said, "As long as we stay connected to the holy Rebbe, even if you're the biggest Baal Aveira, we will have everything fixed". Just as the holy Zohar writes in this week's Parsha (Page 79a), During the entire time that Lot was with Avraham Avinu, he didn't befriend any wicked people. It was only once he parted ways with the Tzadik Avraham Avinu, then what does it say? It says that he ended up going to the bad people of Sedom.

Step By Step

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

Hashem told Avraham Avinu to leave your land, your birthplace, and your fathers home, and go to the land that I will show you. Rashi immediately says that Hashem didn't tell him right away where to go, because he would be rewarded for every command from Hashem. This is a great lesson in life for everyone. Hashem doesn't clearly show us where to go and where we will get to in life. We only see one step at a time, only what we need to do right now. But from then on it seems very dark and unclear, yet we must strengthen ourselves to go step by step, through all hardships, even if we initially don't see where to go, and how we will succeed. Let's strengthen ourselves to serve Hashem step by step, and we will merit to be Ehlicher Yiden, and we will succeed in this world and the next.

The News

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

Fortunate is the one whose News is the Parsha of the Week. His News is the Blatt Gemorah, more than that does not interest him. He knows that Hashem is the creator and controller of all creations. Hashem created the world, and controls the world. No one can make it better or worse. Such a person appreciates Hashems world. Whatever he needs he asks Hashem, his hopes are not dependent on anyone, only on Hashem.

Everyone Can Be

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

To be a Breslever Chusid everyone can be. You don't need to have your wife's approval because to be a real Breslever Chusid doesn't have to do with anyone, not with your wife, not with your family and so on. We can listen to the advice and live by the advice without even knowing that you are following it. Just like tens of thousands of people live where no one realizes that their life comes from the holy Rebbe. The disagreements and oppositions against the Rebbe are unfortunately so strong that people silently live with the encouragement of the Rebbe and his advice. They speak to Hashem everyday and they appreciate every small detail. They don't think about their past, they renew themselves every second without their wife or family knowing about it. This is Breslev and no one is left out because everyone can do it.

An Honest Boy

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

An elderly Yid once related that as a young child he was a very difficult kid. No one knew what to do with him, they tortured and hurt him in school, no one understood him.

Today, this Yid is already an old man and he told me with embarrassment that one time his mother took him to the Lubavitcher Rebbe, he said, "I still remember exactly where I was standing, and the Rebbe asked me, "Do you like school?", I said, "No". "Do you like to learn?", I said, "No". The Rebbe turned to my mother and said, "He is an honest boy!". This Yid said, "The Rebbe got to me, and from then on I had the strength to better myself, things started to get better and better, all thanks to the Rebbe for finding the good in me!".

In Everything We See

The Rosh Yeshiva Says:

The holy Rebbe said in (Lekutei Moharan 1:1), "In everything we see, we must search for Hashem in it". When we see something, we need to find a way to serve Hashem through it. Even when we converse or hear the News etc., we need to take out the signs of how it refers to serving Hashem. Just as the Rebbe said in (Sichas Haran 52), "We see Hashem in everything, even from the media and from the nations of the world, we hear about Hashem". This means that every time we hear the News we need to take out a way to live our life.
